What does social distancing mean to you?

Face masks, 3-6 feet apart, and limited to no sharing of items.

6 feet of distance and face coverings indoors.

Wearing masks, staying 6 feet apart, no touching/physical.

Being far enough away that you can't touch another person, wearing masks or being outside.

No physical contact. Staying a safe distance (6 feet) from one another unless in the same family.

Six feet between individuals and everyone wearing masks. No shares supplies or contact.

Staying a safe distance from others and avoiding large gatherings.

For our family it has meant limiting our contact with most other people. We have been fortunate inn being able to do this but I know our kids need to be with friends too.

What do you miss most about being at church?

I feel our kids have disconnected. Zoom is not the same as face-to-face. HOWEVER, St. Luke's IS DOING THE RIGHT THING by not gathering until it is safer.

Routine, rituals, people, singing, focus on worship (often distracted at home).

Feeling connected to people, and even the routine of getting up and going as a family.

I have enjoyed being able to attend service at 9:30 and lead SG at 11:00. Online allows me to do both, although there's a feeling of fellowship that is lost by not being present with others. But I don't think my kids are as engaged in online stuff as in person. My HS student WAS watching some online sermons initially, but it became a losing battle.

Social interaction with friends and people. Music praise and worship.

The interactions with the people. Seeing people's faces without masks. The freedom to be without the worry of sanitizing.

See everyone in person, the person connection, social aspects of it.

Seeing the other church members.

What has your family gained from this time of worshipping at home?

I guess less stress trying to get everyone to get ready to go.

The time to worship together without the kids being in another service. This has created more discussion in our family regarding the message and service.

My husband and I have tuned into more services than we'd normally be able to in person. While our kids have tuned in less, they at least observe their parents being committed to attending/watching online.

We have enjoyed being more relaxed about "going to church"! While we have enjoyed the intimacy, we do miss the large gathering experience.

I have gained some, but they have lost out.

Watching service together (rather than my kids going to youth) has led to some great conversations.

We've fallen out of our routine and haven't been attending online worship. I know the church needs to stay in touch w people, but I'm also tired of the barrage of emails.
